SPRINGFIELD POLICE DEPARTMENT 2004 ANNUAL STATISTICAL REPORT

Introduction

For a number of years the Springfield Police Department has published an Annual Report covering crime data for the City of Springfield and information about the Police Department. One of the objectives of this report is to give the citizens of Springfield a realistic view of their risks of victimization and to provide detailed information on criminal activity. With this knowledge, the Community and the Police Department can work together to develop effective crime abatement strategies and ensure the quality of life in the City of Springfield.

The overall reported crime rate for 2004 was essentially unchanged from 2003, with a statistically insignificant drop of 0.2%. Reports of crimes against persons rose 2.5%, behavioral crimes rose 3.2%, and property crimes dropped 2.0%.

Arrests increased by 11% over the same time period. Arrest rates for person and behavioral crimes climbed by 18%, behavioral crime arrests increased by 13% and property crime arrests increased by 6%.

When compared to other reporting cities in Oregon, Springfield continues to have an above average property crime rate, ranking 6th in the state in cities with over 10,000 population. In violent crimes, Springfield rates 8th in the state. By population, Springfield is the 9th largest city in the state.

This report is only one of many resources the Springfield Police Department provides to the community. Additional information about the Department and its operations is contained in the 2005 Springfield Police Department Calendar (which is free to the public) and at the Department's web site at www.ci.springfield.or.us/police/home.html.

The Police Department hopes that this statistical summary will meet the needs of the reader and serve as a comprehensive resource for information about the Department's activities and the state of crime in the community.

Suggestions for changes, corrections and additions for future years are encouraged. They should be directed to the Springfield Police Department, Attention: Services Bureau, 344 A Street, Springfield, OR 97477. Suggestions may also be faxed to (541) 726-3640, marked "Attention: Services Bureau".

STATISTICAL CRIME DATA

Introduction

For many years the reporting of crime statistics has been the accepted way to measure the amount of crime for a given area. Current arrest and/or calls-for-service data is compared against data for past time periods, or against a different geographic area, to establish a base line for an expected level of crime. In order to allow some reasonable means for tracking crime trends over time, and for making comparisons across jurisdictions with different criminal statutes, the FBI established a Uniform Crime Reporting Program (UCR) in 1930. Certain crimes or offenses were chosen to serve as an index. Most local jurisdictions also use additional crime categories in studying local crime patterns. The additional offenses used provide a more detailed look at what crime is like in their specific community. In this Annual Report the comparisons between different cities are based on UCR Part I and Part II crimes, explained in more detail below. For the data on crimes and arrests for the City of Springfield, the types of offenses are considerably expanded and the numbers will not match the UCR data. An overview of the UCR program is given below.

The Uniform Crime Reporting Program

The following information is excerpted from the Crime in the United States 2004 publication.

Summary of the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program

The Uniform Crime Reporting Program is a nationwide, cooperative statistical effort of more than 17,000 city, university and college, county, state, tribal, and federal law enforcement agencies voluntarily reporting data on crimes brought to their attention. During 2004, law enforcement agencies active in the UCR Program represented 94.2% of the total population. The coverage amounted to 95.4 percent of the United States population in Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSAs), 86.9 percent of the population in cities outside metropolitan areas, and 89.2 percent in nonmetropolitan counties.

Since 1930, the FBI has administered the Program and issued periodic assessments of the nature and type of crime in the Nation. The Program's primary objective is to generate reliable information for use in law enforcement administration, operation, and management; however, its data have over the years become one of the country's leading social indicators. The American public looks to Uniform Crime Reports for information on fluctuations in the level of crime, and criminologists, sociologists, legislators, municipal planners, the media, and other students of criminal justice use the statistics for varied research and planning purposes.

Historical Background

Recognizing a need for national crime statistics, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) formed the Committee on Uniform Crime Records in the 1920s to develop a system of uniform police statistics. Establishing offenses known to law enforcement as the appropriate measure, the Committee evaluated various crimes on the basis of their seriousness, frequency of occurrence, pervasiveness in all geographic areas of the country, and likelihood of being reported to law enforcement. After studying state criminal codes and making an evaluation of the recordkeeping practices in use, the Committee completed a plan for crime reporting that became the foundation of the UCR Program in 1929.

Seven main offense classifications, known as Part I crimes, were chosen to gauge the state of crime in the Nation. These seven offense classifications included the violent crimes of murder and non-negligent manslaughter, forcible rape, robbery, and aggravated assault and the property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft, and motor vehicle theft. By congressional mandate, arson was added as the eighth Part I offense in 1979.

During the early planning of the Program, it was recognized that the differences among criminal codes precluded a mere aggregation of state statistics to arrive at a national total. Further, because of the variances in punishment for the same offenses in different state codes, no distinction between felony and misdemeanor crimes was possible. To avoid these problems and provide nationwide uniformity in crime reporting, standardized offense definitions by which law enforcement agencies were to submit data without regard for local statutes were formulated.

In 1985, the UCR system was expanded to include a second level of reporting, now known as Part II offenses, including Simple Assault, Forgery, Fraud, Embezzlement, Stolen Property, Vandalism, Weapons Offenses, Prostitution, Sex Offenses, Drugs, Family Offenses, Liquor Offenses, Disorderly Conduct, Kidnapping, All Other, and Runaways.

PERSON CRIMES, PROPERTY CRIMES AND BEHAVIORAL CRIMES

In recent years, many jurisdictions have begun separating offenses or crimes into three categories, "Person Crimes", "Property Crimes", and "Behavioral Crimes".

Person Crimes are criminal offenses where the victim is present and the act is violent or threatening or has the potential of being physically harmful (e.g. murder, negligent homicide, rape and other sex crimes, robbery, assault, kidnapping, extortion).

Property Crimes are offenses that involve taking something of value by theft or deception or the destruction of property (e.g. burglary, theft, arson, vandalism, embezzlement, fraud, forgery). Property crimes are the type of crime that affects the most people in their day-to-day lives.

Behavioral Crimes are criminal offenses that violate laws relating to personal conduct, responsibility and public order (e.g. weapons offense, prostitution, drug abuse, liquor violation, disorderly conduct, curfew violations, D.U.I.I.).

Organizing offenses into groups of similar types of crimes by object category may help readers better understand the types of crime problems the community is having. In this report, the charts and graphs specifically for Springfield use this approach. The actual offenses for Part I and Part II crimes and Person, Property and Behavioral Crimes are the same – just organized differently and as used in Oregon, broader in scope and detail.

Crime can vary from one area to another by amount and also by type. Violent crimes are the most serious, since they most often result in injury to the victim. Consequently, police departments have traditionally focused a great deal of their resources on such crimes. However, over the last few years as various community policing programs have been initiated, it has become apparent that in most communities of moderate size, property crimes and behavioral crimes are better indicators for rating the overall feelings of safety in a community. It is these property and behavioral crimes that most often create the fear of crime and reduce the quality of life in the community. In a community like Springfield, a murder or forcible rape can heighten fears temporarily, but what most people hear about or see on an ongoing basis are property crimes such as theft from a vehicle, forgery or vandalism and behavioral crimes like aggressive panhandling, disorderly conduct or liquor violations.

DEPARTMENTAL ACTIVITY REPORTS

The remainder of this report contains information directly from the Department's own databases, including Calls for Service information, overall crime and arrest reports, and information on domestic violence activity in Springfield.

Because the information in this section is not reported to the FBI in this format, the numbers will not correspond with the UCR data reported in previous sections of this report. Rather than provide only the data which conforms to Uniform Crime Reporting requirements, the intent of the information presented here is to give the reader a sense of the broader activity level of the Department, and an idea of how those activity levels change over time.

The Domestic Disturbance Report, sometimes referred to as Abuse Prevention Act (APA) data, shows the frequency of domestic violence arrests in our community, as well as the frequency at which domestic violence restraining orders are violated.
