Jami Resch, Chief of Police
Nancy Newton, City Manager
City of Springfield, Oregon
Springfield, Oregon

Chief Resch; City Manager Newton:

Particularly from the perspective of, at one time, albeit quite a few years back now, having served as chair of one of Salem's inner-city neighborhood associations, but also simply but importantly enough as an interested person, albeit one now out amongst the wheat and sagebrush of north-central Oregon, and, as well, not to mention someone who himself has had, of late, certain concern over the possibility of suffering a stroke, sure seems to me that the matter reported on below (maybe not the lawsuit itself, but certainly the general health-related circumstances of such incidents) is definitely deserving of at least a serious educating "FYI" conversation to be had at the department's (the city's) next scheduled Police Advisory Committee meeting—a meeting, I would respectfully suggest, which if it's not to be held by year's end then is one which definitely needs to be called as a special meeting, held as soon now as possible, for the expressed purpose of facilitating the aforementioned conversation.

The city, somehow, definitely has some explaining to be putting out there about such incidents, such circumstances—if not in fact some health educating effort to help with, going forward.

Please ensure this send is shared with the committee's members.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
